

Mike Monaghan is a recognised industry professional with over 44 years experience in the body repair and insurance industry.

Mike's background was established within the UK, from an apprentice motor engineer, to multi-shop owner and ultimately became the founder and CEO of the Motor Vehicle Repairers Association (MVRA).

The MVRA was the leading representative of collision repairer networks, having a membership of over 3000 businesses in the UK.

During this time, Mike was the first to create the most advanced and recognised standards for bodyshops in the UK, back in 1988. That standard became the benchmark for every collision shop for over 22 years and was the forerunner of the internationally recognised PAS125.

His membership network was responsible for over £1.1bn in motor repair claims each year.

The success of MVRA enabled Mike to operate within a unique position in the industry, visiting over 20 countries globally studying the collision industry at all levels.

This privileged position allowed Mike to work directly with some of the largest insurance companies and motor manufacturers worldwide.

Mike has been a recognised expert in the sector for over 20 plus years. With global experience he has built up an enviable position with some of the most recognised names in the industry and having been a leading speaker at many global industry events such as ABP, Bodyshop Magazine, NACE, SEMA, CIC & Verifacts conferences.

Mike is now the CEO of i2i and brings his vast knowledge of management structures, systems and processes to the company.
